GOLF COURSE

Soldier Hollow at Wasatch Mountain State Park, a major venue during the 2002 Olympic Winter Games, offers a championship, 36-hole complex built on the mountainside above Midway, Utah. The two 18-hole courses, the Gold and Silver courses, offer challenging play and amazing views of the mountains and Heber Valley below.

There are more than 150 bunkers at Soldier Hollow filled with white silica sand.

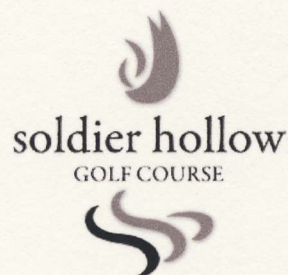

The clubhouse provides a stunning view of the Heber Valley while enjoying a post round meal at the Soldier Hollow Grill.

The waters of Deer Creek reservoir is just one of the stunning landmarks golfers enjoy at Soldier Hollow.

The Gold Course sits at some of the highest elevations of the complex, offering stunning views of the Heber Valley below. The course is a spectacular mountain course with significant elevation changes throughout. The vegetation on the course mirrors the surrounding native area vegetation, scrub oaks and native mountain valley grasses.

The Silver Course is the tamer of the two layouts and has slightly shorter and wider fairways. While flatter in elevation than the Gold, the Silver offers stunning views of Mount Timpanogos.
